Introduction

The seventh compilation of news items from the Rutland Herald spans 1792-1799. We have done our best to try to locate all issues in this time period. This booklet is larger than the other six we have done and consists of 96 pages of information and a 56 page index. It contains many names, some of which were very difficult to read from the microfilm, and using many different spellings. Some of the items which were included in this compilation are delinquent taxpayers and/or proprietors. You will notice that some people seem to be listed in several towns. In those cases we believe the people were proprietors who had obtained the property but probably never lived there.

The fourth newspaper published in Vermont, and the first published in Rutland, was the Herald of Vermont or Rutland Courier established by Anthony Haswell, postmaster general for the Republic of Vermont. He had previously started the Vermont Gazette at Bennington. However, after twelve issues were published, there was a fire on 21 September 1792 which destroyed the next issue and the newspaper was never published again.

James Lyon, in partnership with Judge Samuel Williams, began publication of the Farmer's Library, on 1 April 1793, publishing his last issue on 29 Nov. 1794. On 1 December 1794 Lyon sold his business to Judge Samuel Williams and Reverend Samuel Williams who changed the name of the newspaper to Vermont Mercury or Rutland Herald.

The first issue of the Rutland Herald or Vermont Mercury was published at Rutland, Vermont on 8 December 1794. The four-page weekly newspaper was devoted mostly to international, national and state events, especially on the political scene. It also carried notices and advertisements for the county, some local news, death notices and marriages. Due to the lengthy reports of hostilities in the South during the Civil War, publication went daily in April 1861.

The reader should be informed that when reading the obituaries and marriages that "this town" is Rutland; inst. refers to the present month and ult. to the month prior. Consort is the spouse; relict is the widow. These notices not only included Rutland, but various other towns in Vermont and other states. Unfortunately the state is not always listed after each town where the event occurred. The original spelling has been kept throughout. It must be noted that these notices were handwritten and were deciphered by the newspaper staff. Thus misspellings do occur. It is often difficult to read the microfilm due to the age of the newspapers.

Our sincere gratitude is extended to the following:
